State-wide Bulk Data Downloads

Mineral Resources Tasmania is currently undertaking a number of historic geochemical data capture projects. One such project involves the extraction of drill hole sample data from open file exploration reports. This project is ongoing, however significant progress has been made with the near complete capture of drill hole sample and geochemical data back to 2007.

State-wide bulk data downloads from the TIGER database are now available on request, for the following data types:

- Sample and Observation data (surface and drill hole);
- Geochemical data;
- Consolidated petrophysical data (consolidated sample data and petrophysical results);
- Drill hole data (drill hole collars, and down hole surveys).

Bulk data downloads are available as tabular data in comma-separated values format (csv files). Bulk data downloads are accompanied by an index file and a data dictionary.

For more information on State-wide bulk data downloads, or to request a State-wide bulk data download, please email info@mrt.tas.gov.au.
